REPORT OF LOCAL BOARD OF HEALTH

From Feb. 14, 1889, to Feb. 14, 1890.

The report of the board is necessarily meagre as there is no law requiring reports to the local board of any but contagious diseases, and, in fact, no statute law requiring the collecting and arranging of vital statistics exists, although an effort was made at the last session of our legislature to have such a law passed.

We are indebted to the undertakers for an account of the number of deaths that has occurred during the current year; whole number of deaths, 149. Placing the population at 7,000 the rate of mortality would be a fraction over two per cent. Number of cases of diphtheria, 7; number of cases of scarlet fever, 11; number of cases of typhoid, 26. Seven of the cases of scarlet fever have occurred at Cumberland Mills, four at Saccarappa.

Eighteen complaints have been made to the board. The complaints made referred to neglected privies and surface sink drains; such complaints have received prompt attention. It is not possible, however, to abate all the nuisance of sink drains until something more is done towards extending the sewer system, especially on Brown street.

The attention of the board has been called the past season to the filthy condition of the premises near the house of B. F. Roberts, where the Main street sewer discharges into an open ditch. All the relief that could be afforded was to order the ditch to be cleaned out. With the drainage from several houses on the flat, with the contents of the sewer close by the sidewalk, the condition in a dry time is unhealthy and extremely filthy.

In all cases of contagious diseases reported, isolation has been required and circulars (furnished by State Board) have been distributed. These circulars furnish valuable information concerning the care and treatment of the sick and what precautions to adopt, and how to prepare and use disinfectants.

The law relating to the examination of persons employed in paper mills, when foreign and domestic rags are used, has been complied with. With the present regulations properly attended to, it will hardly be possible for the town to pass through such experience as it has had in the past.

We have had our share of the prevailing influenza of the present season, and no doubt the death rate has been somewhat increased by this visitation, as several fatal cases of pneumonia have occurred, preceded by an attack of "La Grippe."

It will be noticed that there have been seven cases of diphtheria since our last report; these have occurred in five families. It has become a settled question that diphtheria is contagious, and that the neglect of proper precaution is likely to result in extending the disease. Many physicians claim that membranous croup is a form of diphtheria, and facts that have occurred in this town the past season strongly support that view.

PRIVY VAULTS. It has already been stated in this report that the most of the complaints refer to neglected privy vaults. So much complaint has been made in the past by our citizens against the removal of contents of vaults in the daytime that a by-law has been enacted by the local board against such work between sunrise and sunset; and yet the night air seems more favorable for retaining and distributing foul odors than the atmosphere of the daytime. An extract from the report of the local board of Portland is printed here for the benefit of any who may be interested in any improvement in this matter:

"A change in the time and method of cleaning out privy vaults has been adopted the present year. All cleansing is now done in the daytime, and the contents removed in stout oak barrels, furnished with iron heads which are strongly clamped down on rubber gaskets. During the process of cleansing, powerful deodorizers are used, and the barrels being air tight, no odor is perceptible when being transported through the streets. Since last May, when this method was adopted, we have had no complaint of any annoyance caused by it, and the complaints of foul odors during the night time have greatly lessened in number."

We confidently recommend this method to all cities and villages which are using the old method.

REPORT OF S. S. COMMITTEE.

HIGH SCHOOL.

At the close of the winter term of 1889, Mr. Burns, who, as principal, had labored faithfully for ten years, resigned, and the vacancy was filled by the election of Mr. J. H. Parsons, formerly principal of the Maine Central Institute. Mr. Parsons brought with him a large experience as a teacher and the school made rapid progress under his charge, but at the close of the spring term he also resigned, and Mr. F. H. Nickerson, a graduate of Bates college, was elected. These several changes were not without their bad effects on the school, but we were fortunate in each case in securing teachers who have carried the school forward in its good work. The school is much larger than ever before, and we are certain that the standard of admission has rather been raised than lowered.

Miss Hacker, the second assistant, also resigned at the close of the spring term, and Miss Greene has since filled the place. Miss Greene has had experience in High school work, and is laboring for the best interests of the classes under her direction. Miss Wilbur, the first assistant, who has labored with but slight interruption since 1877 in our school, is meeting with her usual success.

The general attendance is much larger than ever before, and fewer are seeking education elsewhere. Thousands of dollars have been paid for education away from home by our citizens heretofore, but we are pleased to see our people begin to appreciate home industries and patronize our High school, which we believe is second to none. The average attendance is also improving, and we are pleased to notice that our people see the necessity of punctuality in order that the best results may be attained.

At the close of the winter term, the teacher at Pride's Corner having resigned, and we not readily finding one suitable for the position, after due deliberation and inquiry of those most interested, decided to make arrangements to convey those qualified to the High school, thus obviating the necessity of employing some one qualified to teach all the High school branches. This was accordingly done, and fourteen pupils were thus able to receive the benefits of the High school at a somewhat less cost to the town than it would have been had we hired a teacher there. By this means, two of the pupils were enabled to graduate, thus making a class of five. At the beginning of the fall term, the accommodations were increased so that the pupils at Duck Pond were able to attend, thus permitting all parts of the town to avail themselves of the privileges of the High school. While the results of this method were mainly satisfactory and the expense somewhat less than heretofore, your committee would not feel justified in recommending its continuance, but would invite the people of those sections of the town to a careful consideration on their part of the advantages of attending the regular school, and that an effort be made by them to secure it.

For further particulars, see report of principal.

INTERMEDIATE GRADE.

This grade is commonly classed with the primaries, but as with us it has always retained its identity. It is composed of two classes, each of which has its teacher wherever practicable. There are four of them, and they contain about one hundred and eighty pupils. All are at present under the management of Normal teachers.

PRIMARIES.

The Primary schools contain more than half the pupils of the town. Under favorable circumstances, some eight hundred attend and fifteen teachers are employed. There are also about one hundred children attending private schools.

The Primaries are divided into first and second, and the higher grade carry the pupils through the simple rules and United States money, yet a large number—nearly twenty-five per cent.—never get beyond these schools, but finish their education here. The work of one of these schools is the work of all, and special mention need not be made. Warren school house is devoted wholly to primary work. The old High school room is used to accommodate those pupils who work a part of the time in the factories, but are obliged by law to attend school sixteen weeks during the year and do not readily classify in the regular schools.

MIXED SCHOOLS.

Outside the villages the schools are more or less ungraded, according to circumstances, and the large number of classes necessitate shorter periods. The same amount of school is given them and good work is done.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

In each village one room is occupied by a Grammar school and each school has two classes, the first of which fit scholars for the High school. These schools are under the management of a male principal, who has the general government of the other schools in the building under his direction. Mr. O. S. Norton resigned at the close of the spring term and Mr. C. W. Wentworth was elected to the position, and work is being done with the assistance of Miss Fellows. This school labors under the disadvantage of being crowded, as one of the classes is all that can be accommodated. The room was originally intended for forty-nine pupils, and has had eighty-one. While a teacher is employed for each class and a small ante-room provided for recitations, yet the seating of so many in one room is detrimental to health, and your committee cannot warrant good work while such a state of things exists.

The Grammar school at Cumberland Mills is under the management of Mr. H. L. Berry, whose faithful work with his pupils is too well known to need any commendation.

About fifty pupils will apply for admission to the High school this year.

BOOKS.

The law renders it a duty, as well as privilege, for the town to furnish its pupils with school books, and we are sure that the cost is less than one-half the cost of the old way. As many of the books in use were very dilapidated, we made a trade with publishers, whereby we exchanged the old for new, at the same time getting rid of a large amount of worthless and unhealthy material. In this manner we put in eight hundred Harper's Readers, new edition. The introduction of Appleton's geographies has been completed, thus making nearly all the books new. These changes, together with a large increase in the number of scholars in the High and Grammar grade, thus requiring more books and costly ones, have somewhat overrun the appropriation, and as large an amount ($700) will be needed next year as this. The cost is about fifty cents for each pupil.

SCHOOL HOUSES.

All the school houses are in good general repair except the Old North. This house has been condemned by a generation of committees, and is only tolerated through necessity. It answers quite well in summer and can be made habitable in mild winters, but is not safe. The appropriation of five hundred dollars for its repair was not expended last year as experts pronounced it useless. We would suggest that the appropriation for repairs be made large enough to cover expenses, so as not to take ten per cent. of the appropriation for schools.

GENERAL CONCERNS OF THE SCHOOL.

The attendance is not what it should be, and committees for many years have told us so, in fact, so many years, that it would seem a waste of time to tell it again; but the success we have met with in the High school encourage us to try and reach it in the lower grades. The facts are these: That while "la grippe," and all the other diseases that children's flesh is heir to, keep many pupils at home, there is a large number out for other causes. These causes are brought about somewhat in this way: In the First Primary school many are sent too young, as their parents say, to get used to going, and are there about half the time. They get used rather to staying out of school than of going, and this is the habit that they learn, and it follows them all through their school life. As they grow older, every means are used by these pupils to have a day off. Base ball, skating, sliding, maying, and everything, is put before school, and the pupil soon learns if necessary to play truant, and when looked after by the officer, the parent is too often ready with an excuse. Then, too, the earning of a few cents, which might be earned before or after school, or on holidays, takes the pupil out of school. With all these losses, they lose their interest in school, lose their places in the class, become great boys among little ones, and without any wonder leave school entirely, without having finished the Primary school course. Just where the rights of parents cease and where the duty of the truancy officer begins, is difficult to determine. The remedy is, never send a child to school until it is old enough, and then impress it firmly on its mind that school is the best place for them and that they must be found there every day and in season. Be very sure that they do not lose the first day and you may be certain they will have no desire to lose others.

In closing we would say, that while we are in the main satisfied with the work of the schools, and while by employing the best of instructors and encouraging them to careful and thorough labor, we offer to the community the privilege of a good education for their children at a trifling cost to themselves, yet we are obliged to report that through the indifference of parents and those having the children in charge, that in some of our schools forty per cent. of the pupils are absent from day to day and without reasonable excuse.

We earnestly hope that the day is not far distant when a full understanding and agreement will be entered into among parents, officers and teachers, looking to the advancement and perfection of our school system in Westbrook.

Since writing the above report, we have received the pleasing information that Cloudman Post, No. 100, G. A. R., has procured a beautiful flag, which is to be presented to the Westbrook High school when a suitable staff shall have been erected to receive it, and a committee from the G. A. R. and of the municipal officers, with the principal of the High school, are taking the requisite steps for the reception and raising of the same with appropriate ceremonies. No greater gift can be presented to the youth of our town than this emblem of Liberty and Equality, and, coming as it does from its valiant defenders, it will no doubt be duly appreciated; and as the scholars receive it with patriotic songs, and raise it with cheers; and as they listen to the accompanying prayers and remarks on the occasion, may the love of God and their Country be so deeply impressed upon their minds and hearts that time can never eradicate it.

While we, as the officers of the town, would thus early express our thanks in behalf of the school for this timely and appropriate gift, coming from so honorable a source, we cannot forget the many other school houses in the town (some of them bearing the names of very much loved and respected persons) which have no flag, and others that would gladly take upon themselves the name, having none of their own, of the man or woman who would present them with one.

REPORT OF HIGH SCHOOL.

To The Superintending School Committee:

GENTLEMEN :—Having been connected with the High school only a part of the year, I am unable to give to this report that completeness characteristic of previous reports of the school.

A change of principals twice during the year and a change of assistants, caused by the resignation of Miss Hattie Haacker, with the revision of our course of study, have of necessity, to a greater or less extent, interrupted the efficiency of the work and discipline of the school; yet, notwithstanding these interruptions, the results thus far have been such that I am confident the year has been a profitable one.

At the opening of the present school year there seemed to be a manifest desire that certain branches of study be added to the curriculum of the High school in order that students desiring to pursue courses of study in higher institutions might obtain, in our own town, the necessary preparation for entrance into those institutions. In conformity to this desire the course of study has been carefully revised. Obviously to put into operation a revised course must cause some confusion and the full benefit of the change cannot be immediately realized, since it is an impossibility to bring the students that were in the school previous to the change, completely into line with the changed requirements at once.

The new curriculum presents to the student three courses of study,—an English course, a course allowing the substitution of Latin for one of the English branches in the above, and a course designed to prepare students to pass the entrance examinations to our New England colleges. Thus, students under the wise direction of parents with the co-operation of teachers are enabled to make a selection conforming to their circumstances, while in point of training the courses are supposed to be nearly equal.

Believing that the mission of the public school, supported as it is by public taxation, is to fit young men and young women for the highest type of citizenship, and realizing that a large percentage of students close their school days with the High school, all the instruction of the school is given with this in view; and, as one means to such an end, the larger part of one session each week is devoted to work of a general nature, of which the consideration of current topics makes a part, thereby enabling students to become conversant with the leading questions of the day and to form an intelligent idea of the trend of public affairs.

The value of music and a well selected library in a school, leads me to suggest that some immediate action be taken to furnish the school with a piano and the nucleus of a library, which, by small annual appropriations, might, in a few years, become not only a source of pride to all, but a powerful agent in counteracting the pernicious influence of the trashy literature which so easily falls into the hands of the young.

Omitting mention of necessary absences caused by the prevalence of "La Grippe" in the school, there has been a regularity of attendance highly gratifying, as indicative of an interest felt by both students and parents in the work of the school.

The attendance during the year has been the largest in the history of the school. One hundred and thirty-three students have been registered, a gain of about 30 per cent. over last year, and the indications from our two Grammar schools promise a corresponding increase in the attendance for the coming year.

To meet the additional demands made by an extended course of study and an increased attendance, there is positive need that another teacher be added to the present number, if the best results are to be secured.

I may be pardoned, if, while thanking parents for their hearty co-operation whenever it has been asked, I remind them that it would be gratifying both to teachers and pupils to have their helpful presence among us oftener.

My connection with the school thus far has been of a pleasant nature. My assistant teachers have been thoroughly earnest, unselfish and helpful in their services, while the many manifestations of manly and womanly qualities among the pupils have been constantly encouraging.

For the uniform courtesy of the committee in all the relations into which we have been brought, I feel grateful, and, to you, gentlemen of the committee, I extend sincere thanks for the readiness with which you have provided for the needs of the school, for your wise suggestions, and for the kindly manner in which I have been made to feel your co-operation and support.

Respectfully submitted,

F. H. NICKERSON.

Principal of High school.
